Highlights

Updates to the commentary introduces discussion of recent case law, including the following:

- Drivers' Licences—Offences—Months after pleading guilty to dangerous driving, failing to stop for police and other charges, the accused learned that, pursuant to s. 41(1) of the Highway Traffic Act, as a repeat dangerous driving offender, he had become subject to a lifetime driving suspension. The accused successfully sought an extension of time in order to appeal his conviction and sentence for dangerous driving—the motions judge was satisfied that the accused had been unaware of the consequence under the provincial statute, and granted the extension: R. v. Cole, 2025 ONCA 535, 2025 CarswellOnt 11615 (Ont. C.A.).

- Rate of Speed—Nature of Offence—The accused was driving a tractor-trailer at 100 kph when he realized the vehicles ahead of him had stopped. He slowed to 77 kph before swerving, and the resulting collision resulted in two deaths and two other persons injured. The accused pleaded guilty to careless driving causing death, and the parties suggested the imposition of a $4,000 fine. The court, however, imposed a sentence of 50 days, followed by 18 months' probation and a three-year driving suspension: R. v. Buttar, 2024 ONCJ 727, 2024 CarswellOnt 21918 (Ont. C.J.).
