

Table of Contents

Dedication	iii
Acknowledgments	v
Foreword	vii
Table of Cases	xv
Introduction	1
 Part I – Prosecutions for International Crimes in Canada in Context
Chapter 1 – Historical Background of the Act	15
1.1 War Criminals in Canada Post-World War II until 1987	15
1.2 The 1985 Deschênes Commission of Inquiry	23
1.3 The Attempts at Prosecution	27
1.4 The Post-Cold War Era: Renewed Enthusiasm at the International and National Levels	32
Chapter 2 – Jurisdiction	35
2.1 Temporal Jurisdiction	36
2.2 “Traditional” Bases of Jurisdiction	39
2.3 Universal Jurisdiction (and the obligation aut dedere aut judicare)	41
2.3.1 Incentives of the Rome Statute	43
2.3.2 Distinction between universal jurisdiction and the obligation aut dedere aut judicare	45
2.3.3 Obligations arising from treaty law and from customary international law	49
2.3.4 Requirement of the presence of the accused on Canadian territory	53
2.4 Deciding to Exercise Jurisdiction	60
2.4.1 The role of the Attorney General of Canada	61
2.4.1.1 Scope and meaning of the exclusive jurisdiction and of the requirement of consent	62
2.4.1.2 The reasons for such requirements	64
2.4.2 Criteria guiding the decision to exercise jurisdiction	70
2.4.2.1 Reasonable prospect of conviction	71
2.4.2.2 Public interest: international obligations, financial constraints and the “dilemma of justice”	73
2.4.2.3 Transparency and accountability	85
2.4.3 Judicial review of the decision not to prosecute	86

Part II - Offences: Genocide, Crimes against Humanity, War Crimes and Superior Responsibility

Introduction to Part II	93
Chapter 3 – General Principles Applicable to All Core Crimes	95
3.1 Rationale for the Criminalisation of International Offences in the Domestic Legal Order	95
3.2 Reliance on International Law in the Crimes’ Definitions	102
3.2.1 Reliance on customary international law and the role of the Rome Statute	102
3.2.1.1 Possible constitutional challenges	107
3.2.1.2 General mens rea requirements of Article 30 of the Rome Statute	110
3.2.2 Conventional international law	115
3.3 Law Applicable to the Underlying Offences	118
3.3.1 Rationale for the application of international law	119
3.3.2 Impact on the definition of murder	126
3.3.2.1 Sentencing scheme as regards murder	129
3.3.3 Impact on the definition of crimes of a sexual nature	132
3.3.3.1 Elements of the crimes in the ad hoc tribunals jurisprudence	133
3.3.3.2 The Rome Statute and the Elements of Crimes	138
3.3.3.3 Canadian law on sexual assault and sexual violence pursuant to the Act	143
3.3.4 Impact on the definition of torture	149
3.4 Included Offences	155
Chapter 4 – Elements of the Crimes Defined in the Act	159
4.1 Genocide	159
4.1.1 Particularities of the definition contained in the Act	160
4.1.2 Impact of the reliance on the Rome Statute	163
4.2 Crimes against Humanity	165
4.2.1 Actus reus : the policy requirement	168
4.2.2 Mens rea : the knowledge requirement	169
4.3 War Crimes	172
4.3.1 Definitional issues	172
4.3.2 Incoherence created by the co-existence of two war crimes legislations	181
4.4 Distinct Offence of Breach of Responsibility by Superiors	185
4.4.1 Nature of superior responsibility	187
4.4.2 Negligence as sufficient mens rea	189
4.4.3 Causation	192
4.4.4 Sections 5 and 7 of the Act	194

4.4.4.1 The rationale for a distinct offence	194
4.4.4.2 Causal link	197
4.4.4.3 Jurisdiction	198
4.4.4.4 Complicity and inchoate offences	204
 Part III - General Principles of Liability
Introduction to Part III	213
Chapter 5 – Scope of the Act and Principal Liability	221
5.1 Modes of Participation to Offences Included in the Act	221
5.2 Commission	226
5.2.1 Perpetration by omission	227
5.2.2 Perpetration	230
5.2.2.1 Joint criminal enterprise	233
5.2.3 Co-perpetration	242
5.2.4 Commission through another person	246
5.2.5 Indirect co-perpetration	250
Chapter 6 – Secondary and Inchoate Liability	255
6.1 Complicity: Aiding, Abetting and Common Purpose	255
6.1.1 Aiding and Abetting	255
6.1.1.1 Liability arising out of a common criminal purpose	271
6.1.1.2 Application of the law on complicity to international crimes	278
6.1.2 “Complicity” as interpreted in immigration and refugee law	282
6.1.2.1 Relevance of immigration jurisprudence	282
6.1.2.2 Complicity	286
6.1.3 Accessory after the fact	289
6.2 Counselling	292
6.2.1 Comparative assessment of “counselling” as a mode of participation to offences (secondary liability)	292
6.2.1.1 Instigator’s extended liability	298
6.2.2 Comparative assessment of “counselling” as an inchoate offence	301
6.2.2.1 Counselling –or incitement to – genocide	302
6.2.2.1.1 War Crimes Act v. Criminal Code	305
6.2.2.2 Counselling crimes against humanity and war crimes?	311
6.2.3 Ordering in international criminal law	315
6.3 Attempt	317
6.4 Conspiracy	321
Conclusion	325

Appendix 1: Excerpts from the Crimes Against Humanity and War Crimes Act	339
Appendix 2: Repealed Sections 7(3.71) to (3.77) of the Criminal Code ...	359
Bibliography	361
Index	387